1. BACKGROUND

1.1 At the Committee's meeting on 17 March 2016, the adoption of a Reserves Policy in line with recommendations from Audit Scotland was approved, and it was agreed that the adopted policy should be subject to annual review.

2. WoSAS RESERVES POLICY

2.1 The adopted Reserves Policy for the West of Scotland Archaeology Service is closely linked to the Service Financial programme, and takes into account:

- The expenditure and income projections for future years, and the predicted size of any surplus or deficit.
- The risks associated with income sources, including the level of income and the existing and future number of sources.
- The economic climate and political policy background which may determine the outlook of the member Councils and their ability to fund the Service.
- The level of financial liabilities and other costs going forward.

2.2 The adopted policy states:

"The West of Scotland Archaeology Service will use its best endeavours to build and retain sufficient financial reserves in its accounts to offset its liabilities. The Service will report the level of its reserves and its estimated liabilities annually to the Joint Committee, together with any proposed remedial action."

3. ANNUAL REVIEW OF THE RESERVES POLICY FOR 2023-24

3.1 The required annual review of the level of financial reserves appropriate to the needs of the Service was undertaken by the manager of the Service in consultation with a Principal Finance Officer in Glasgow City Council representing the host authority, but has been hampered by an ongoing difficulty in the retrieval of financial monitoring information from the host authority's IT systems following an incident during a planned upgrade to those systems. Current estimates are based on data available prior to the incident.

3.2 The financial reserves of the Service at the end of the 2021-22 financial year were £163,428. During the first half of the current financial year, Service income received from fees levied under the Service's Access to Information and Charging Policy returned to a level within the range expected prior to the Covid pandemic. Notwithstanding an increase in staffing costs, available information suggests that at financial year-end, there will be a modest operating surplus. The revised level of retained financial reserves of the Service at the end of the current financial year is presently estimated to be approximately £165,400.

3.3 Reviewing the budgetary projections, likely financial risks and liabilities, and the prevailing economic climate, it was determined that an appropriate financial reserve should be able to address the financial costs of any foreseeable "worst case scenario" that might affect the Service. Such scenario modeling was made using the following assumptions:

- That it is possible under the terms of the current WoSAS Minute of Agreement that if a final consensus cannot be reached on a revised sustainable service delivery model, all current member Councils might decide to dissolve the Joint Service with immediate effect, and that the Service staff would therefore revert to roles within Glasgow City Council.
- That the Glasgow City Council "no compulsory redundancies" policy continues in effect.
- That on average, redeployment of staff to new roles within Glasgow City Council takes approximately six months.

No other threats or risks were judged to be substantive enough to warrant inclusion in the calculations for the period under review.

3.4 The review based on the assumptions above indicates that an appropriate level of reserve for the Service would include a sum equivalent to no less than six months' salaries and on-costs for the current staff of the Service in order to reimburse the host authority for the costs of any transitional arrangements should the Service be dissolved. The review also indicates that the reserves' level should allow for a possible future draw-down to offset the short-term budgetary impacts of increased staffing costs due to national pay awards outwith the range previously experienced, and which may occur before any Service restructuring which may follow the conclusion of the ongoing review of service provision. Taking account of the proposed financial projections for the 2023-24 financial year, a reserve level of £96,000 is proposed.

3.5 If the retention of the proposed level of financial reserves is approved, and if the budget proposed for financial year 2023-24 is agreed, then the combined financial projections would indicate that action within the terms of the WoSAS Reserves Policy will be required in future to reduce the level of reserves.

3.6 Proposals for reducing the level of retained financial reserves in a sustainable manner will be brought to the Joint Committee for consideration.
