1 Background

In March 2025, the Committee approved a revised Risk Policy and Strategy Statement. Unlike the Fund's other policy documents, this is not a requirement of the regulations but is considered a matter of best practice. The Statement sets out a common basis for risk management across the Fund's other policies and strategies.

2 Risk Management Process

The risk management process is illustrated as follows.

3 Risk Register

As a key part of the risk strategy, a detailed risk register has been established and is maintained for the Strathclyde Pension Fund (SPF) and the Strathclyde Pension Fund Office (SPFO). The format is consistent with the corporate and departmental registers. The register provides a simple, systematic and consistent basis for recording, analysis, understanding, communication, management, monitoring and reporting of risks.

4.3 Emerging Risks

The risk environment changes constantly, though this does not always lead to immediate changes in individual risk assessments or addition of new risks. At present there are three areas of concern that are most prevalent as drivers of risk, and seem to have most potential to prompt a change in risk assessment.

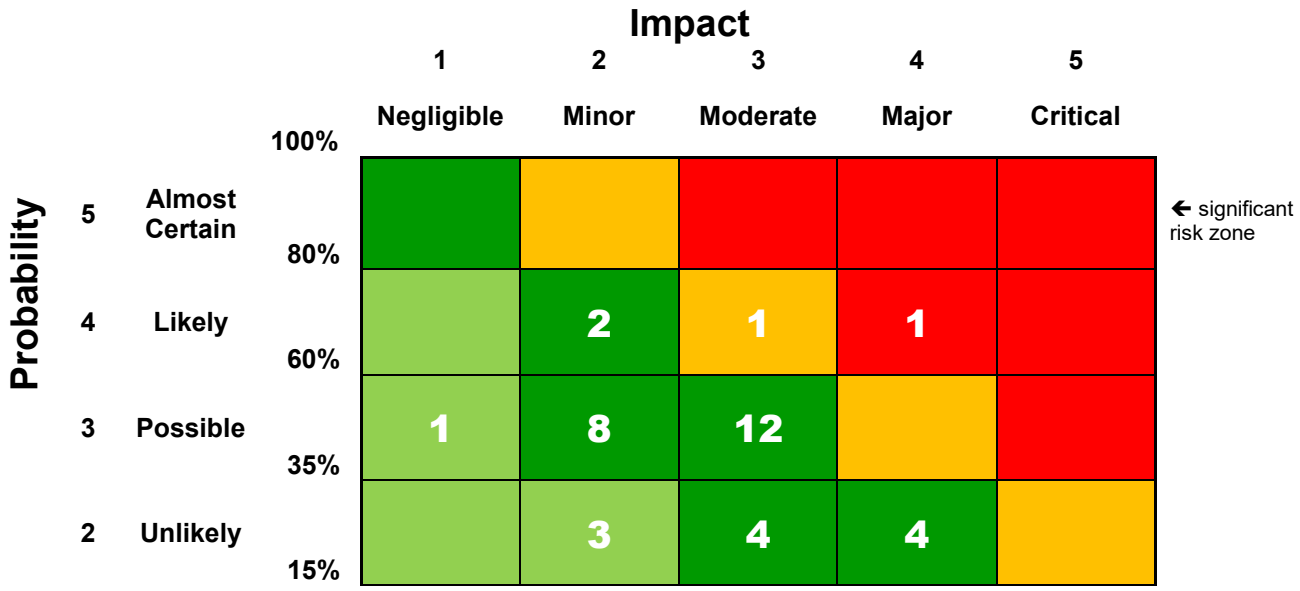

Geopolitical risk - there continue to be heightened international tensions around: existing conflicts (Russia/Ukraine, Israel/Palestine, US/Iran), potential conflicts (escalation in Middle East), tariffs and other changes in trading patterns, energy security, and a shifting balance of global power. This has already led to market volatility and investor nervousness, and seems likely to continue to do so. But this is already largely captured in existing investment risk mitigations: diversification, modelling of multiple scenarios, current strong funding level, etc.

People risk – the next year or so will see some personnel changes as a result of current recruitment, planned recruitment, management departures and the council elections in 2027. Implementation of a revised pay and grading structure is also causing some distraction.

AI – the rapid adoption and growth of AI capabilities has huge potential to drive efficiencies, generate growth, and deliver improvements in public services. It also carries significant risks. These include: economic and investment market disruption, workforce adjustment, misinformation and disinformation, bias and discrimination, data privacy, and environmental, social and governance impacts. These are fairly diverse impacts and span many of the risks already identified in the risk register. Mitigations, such as AI guidelines, policies, and governance frameworks are also developing rapidly. AI has not been added as a discrete risk, but AI impacts are being assessed and added to commentary where appropriate in in the review of existing risks.

4.4 Distribution

Current distribution of risks is summarised as follows.

1	Rare	0%			1

4.5 Risks and Mitigations

The most significant risks are summarised at Appendix A.
